ADDRESS TO THE PUBLIC.

If a man be true to himself, it is important he should labor in some way and make earnings, and it is equally important that when he wishes to spend those earnings, he should look to his bargains, and get the best value he can for his money. A great writer and philosopher, coming to his death-bed, wrote these lines:

"Since I must bid this world adieu, let me my former life review.
I grant my bargains were well made, for all men should protect themselves in trade---
It is self-defense in all professions: surely self-defense is no transgression."

And it is very plain at the close of one's life they may regret many things they have done, but they will not regret any honest bargains they may have obtained. At the sign of the four red flags on Houston street we offer for sale two bankrupt stocks—the stock of Mr. E. S. Turk, of Fort Worth, purchased of Sheriff Maddox; the stock of Mr. Isaac Trepp, of Centralia, Illinois, purchased of Sheriff Mason, of St. Louis city. These two cost Mr. Turk and Mr. Trepp about $35,000, and were purchased by me for cash for less than half that amount.

I will sell the goods at retail at about one-half to two-thirds of the usual retail price. Come and see them. If you don't want to buy, you are welcome to look at the stock and price, and satisfy yourselves that, while all this is wonderful, it is all true. If you don't want to buy you will be treated politely, and you can tell your friends what you have seen with your own eyes.

The goods consist of Men's and Boys' Clothing, Men's and Boys' Boots and Shoes, Men's and Boys' Hats and Caps, Shirts, Collars, Gloves, Hosiery, Neckwear, Underwear, Trunks and Valises. Such an offering at retail has never before occurred in the United States, and will probably never occur in Fort Worth again.

Any goods purchased of us, if not satisfactory to the buyer, can be returned the following day, and the money will be refunded. There will be no talk upon the subject, more than to hand you the money—you will not be required or urged to buy something else in place of the goods you have returned.

One price, and only one price, is a rigid rule of our business. We shall treat the rich and poor all alike; the money of one of them is just as good to us as that of the other. The merchant that makes only one price must make a low one, or his one-price system will stop his sales. We will illustrate this plainly:

Suppose we were a one-price store and asked high prices for our goods, as, for instance, $15, which is the usual price for a gent's all-wool indigo blue flannel suit. A buyer comes in and prices the goods, says he came in because we had advertised to sell cheap---and that $15 is not cheap for the goods. Out goes the buyer---the sale is lost. We are a one-priced house, you see, and cannot reduce the price to please him.

One price and high prices won't work---it has been tried a thousand times; but one price and low prices will work, and work good. We just ask $10 for the gent's all-wool indigo blue flannel suit; the buyer says he will take it, the cash goes into the drawer, and we are ready for the next man. We can afford to sell the goods cheap---we bought at sheriffs' sales, and we bought cheap. We are often asked how we got all those cheap goods. To use a Texas expression, we RUSTLE for them, and, having been in the trade all our lives, we know a good bargain from a bad one as soon as we look at it---we take the good bargains, the bad ones we leave.

Exhibition and Concert of the Mineola Normal School.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

Mineola, July 7.—Last night the management of the normal school gave a highly interesting exhibition, consisting of vocal and instrumental music by Mrs. J. F. McDaniel, Misses Eddie Calahan and Minnie Patten, and recitations by Misses Mary Niblack and Eddie Calahan. The affair, though hurriedly gotten up, commanded the enthusiastic appreciation of the audience. But it was not the teachers' motive merely to invite the citizens of Mineola for an intellectual treat. The real object of the entertainment was to arrest the attention of the people and fix it upon the undertaking in which these teachers are engaged. The exhibition will certainly prove to have given the school a decided impetus, for it was the means of enlisting the sympathy and cooperation of our citizens for the enterprise.

Monday, C. Buchanan addressed the audience in a few well chosen remarks.

Sunday School Celebration and Picnic Near Keller.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

Keller, July 5.—The Sabbath school of Keller, Gilead and Lone Elm, respectively superintended by Prof. R. Moore, Mr. H. G. Moore and Mr. C. W. Williams, convened to-day. After an impressive march with banners to a beautiful grove about one mile and a half east of Keller, elegant and instructive Sabbath school address were delivered by Prof. Moore and Prof. W. W. Works of Houston. The oratorical team was brought up by an able oration from Hon. A. J. Chambers on education, public schools, constitutional amendments and allied topics, after which the crowd separated into parties and a sumptuous entertainment added a physical to the intellectual feast of the day. The affair was a splendid success. A commendation of Mr. Chambers' remarks may hereafter be supplied.

Is Lottie Married?

A Washington special to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, dated July 3d, says: The Rev. F. D. Power, Garfield's old pastor, Miss Charlotte Crabtree and Mr. O. Edwin Huss, last evening, at the residence of a friend. A prominent southern democratic congressman, who knows them both, says that Miss Crabtree was not any one else beside Lotta, and that Mr. Huss is a good fellow, who will make her a good husband. At the house where the wedding was said to have taken place, the lady who opened the door admitted that a wedding between the parties named had occurred, but when asked whether the bride's name was "Lotta," said she had nothing more to say. Inquiry at the Arlington where the bride and groom were said to have spent the night, preparatory to leaving for Europe to-day, revealed the fact that a lady and gentleman—the lady resembling Lotta—arrived there last night and registered as Mr. and Mrs. Steinmetz of New Mexico. They left to-day. The doubt entertained about the story of the wedding grows out of the belief that Lotta is in Europe, where she sailed recently. Still, she is said to have returned.

Huss is a handsome, fair-haired Englishman, who recently inherited $150,000. He is a graduate of the Annapolis Naval academy. He has been a theatrical manager in a small way. He saved Lotta's life on Lake George some time since. She gave him a medal for it, and fell in love with him. He was then in love with a Washington girl, who will tomorrow marry a Connecticut man. He afterwards turned to Lotta, so goes the story.

HER TEETH FOR HER LOVE.

The Romance of a New Jersey Belle With Cruel Parents—Orders to Part With Her Beautiful Teeth Because She Refused to Discard the Man of Her Choice.

—A Strange Story.

The Evening News of Philadelphia publishes a strange story of terrible cruelty to which a young girl has been subjected by her father in Atlantic City. On Tuesday morning Dr. A. Cornog, a dentist, who practices at Atlantic City during the summer, was visited by a fine-looking young lady named Belle Herring, about twenty years of age. She was much agitated and requested the dentist to extract her teeth.

The mental condition of the young lady rather surprised Dr. Cornog. When she was seated in the chair he found that eleven of her front teeth had already been extracted. He became curious at the strange circumstance, and inquired who had extracted the teeth, and why she wishes the remainder drawn. Miss Herring, greatly agitated, told the dentist that her father was punishing her for receiving a young man at her house whom he did not like. Miss Herring told Dr. Cornog that one evening the gentleman called to see her and her father ordered him to leave the premises, and after he had gone informed her that, as a punishment for receiving his visits, she must either go to a convent or have her teeth extracted. She had chosen to lose her teeth rather than go to a convent. The horrified dentist refused to have anything to do with the case, and the lady departed.

Dr. Cornog narrated the above facts to a reporter, and the latter set out to find the young man who had been summarily ejected from Acme cottage. Without much trouble the young man was found in the person of Mr. George Wolf, who keeps a store on the broad walk along the beach. Mr. Wolf stated that he had called upon the young lady in question on Saturday evening, June 7, and after he had been introduced to Mrs. Herring, the step-mother of Miss Belle, he sat down on the porch which surrounds the cottage to spend the evening.

He had only been seated a short time when the father of the young girl made his appearance and ordered her in the house, and at the same time made a remark offensive to Mr. Wolf, who immediately retaliated. A few sharp words were exchanged and the young man left the porch with injunctions more forcible than elegant never to make his appearance again at that house. Mr. Wolf said he did not see the young lady again for a week or so after that, but when he did she told him the same tale she subsequently told Dr. Cornog. Mr. Wolf was greatly exercised at this terrible punishment, but was at a loss to know how to act in the matter. He stated that he had been introduced to Miss Herring in Philadelphia, and had always respected her as a lady. The reporter expressed a desire to see the father and night before last, in company with Mr. Wolf, he called at the house. The door of the residence was opened by Mr. Herring, who invited the visitors in, not recognizing Mr. Wolf. When the two were seated the reporter stated the rumor briefly to Mr. Herring.

At first that gentleman was taken aback, but recovering himself, he cried fiercely, "It's a lie, and whoever said it is a liar." He rose from his chair and paced up and down the room in an excited manner. The room was dimly lighted by a hall lamp, and when their parent walked out to the hall he disclosed a hard-favored man of about 50 years of age, with a determined expression, which showed him to be a man of fixed purpose. Suddenly he paused and demanded to know who the "individual" was who accompanied the reporter.

On being informed, he cried: "Is that the fellow whom I ordered off the porch?"

"I am a gentleman!" cried Mr. Wolf, excitedly, "and I mean to protect your daughter from your extreme cruelty."

"Who is cruel?" demanded the father, as he sank into a chair and leaned over and gazed into the face of the young man.

"You are cruel," replied Mr. Wolf, hotly.

"You're a liar!" thundered Mr. Herring.

At this Mr. Wolf half rose in his chair, and then, thinking discretion the better part of valor, sank back and said nothing.

At this war of words Mrs. Herring, who had been listening from a room across the hall, stepped into the parlor and volunteered to explain the matter.

"I told Belle that she could have her teeth extracted if she wanted to, as a few of the front ones were decayed, and have false ones made, and she went to Dr. Rittenhouse and had eleven extracted, but I did not know that she went to Dr. Cornog. At all events, I will call her down and make her answer."

A servant was dispatched for the young girl, but returned immediately with the intelligence that "Miss Belle has fled and will not be seen."

At this Mrs. Herring went to the girl's room, and in about fifteen minutes returned, leading the young woman weeping into the room.

"Speak out," Belle, and tell the truth," said her father, "did I force you to have your teeth drawn?"

The young girl made no reply, but sank on the sofa and buried her face in her hands. Coaxing was of no avail, and commands were fruitless, and all efforts to make the young girl speak were of no purpose. Mrs. Herring rang for water and threw it in the girl's face to revive her. The water had the desired effect, and Miss Herring regained consciousness. She would only say that she wanted to go to her room.

"You must speak," cried Mrs. Herring, as she shook the girl by the arm.

"Don't use the girl so rudely," Mrs. Herring, interposed Mrs. Wolf, "we will call when she is more composed."

"Leave the house, you impudent rascal," cried Mrs. Herring, as she threw open the door.

Mr. Wolf arose and walked out. Mr. Herring sitting motionless while the strong climax was being enacted.

ADAMS, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1882.—Dr. R. J. Kendall & Co. Gent.—Having used a good deal of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with great success, I thought I would let you know what it has done for me. Two years ago I had a speedy colt as was ever raised in Jefferson county. When I was breaking him he kicked over the cross bar and got fast and tore one of his hind legs all to pieces. I employed the best farriers, but they all said he was spoiled. He had a very large thorn pin, and I used two bottles of your Kendall's spavin cure, and it took the thorn entirely off, and he sold afterwards for $100.00. I have used it for bone spavins and windgalls, and it has always cured completely and left the foot smooth. It is a splendid medicine for rheumatism. I have recommended it to a good many, and they all say it does the work. I was with W. H. H. and Kendall's drug store, in Adams, the other day, and saw a very fine picture you sent them and I tried to say it had cured me; they said I would write to you that you would send me one. I wish you would, and I will do you all the good I can. Very respectfully, E. S. LYMAN.

From the Akron Commercial, Ohio, of Nov. 25th, 1881.

Readers of the Commercial cannot well forget that a large space has for years been taken up by Kendall's advertisements—especially in the case of spavins and thorn pins. I have used your Kendall's Spavin Cure for many years, and we know of some large business houses in this city who have used it for many years, and the truth is fully and faithfully proven, not only that he is a good, honest man, and that his celebrated Spavin Cure is not only all that it is recommended to be, but that the English language is not capable of recommending it too highly.

Kendall's Spavin Cure will cure spavins. There are hundreds of cases in which that has been proven to our certain knowledge, but, after all, if any person confines the usefulness of this celebrated medicine to curing spavins alone, they make a big mistake. It is the best medicine known to us for curing spavins, but it is good for pains and aches, swellings and lameness, and is just as easily applied to men, women and children as to horses. I have known that there are other good liniments, but we do believe this spavin cure to be far better than any other.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

FOR FORT WORTH, TEXAS, March 12, 1883.

Messrs. R. J. Kendall & Co.—About six months ago there was a valuable stallion brought to the stable of Farmer and I saw him. He had a bone spavin which was one year's growth and of pronounced size, and having learned that you had a cure for it, I bought a bottle of your Kendall's spavin cure, and having applied two bottles the horse was cured entirely, leaving the leg perfectly smooth.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

On Human Flesh.

It has been used in thousands of cases on human flesh with such wonderful success that we now feel certain it is the best liniment known for man, as it has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases, which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments, and yet it does not blister or cause a sore.

EVANS, Ind., August 12, 1881.—Dr. R. J. Kendall & Co. Gent.—Sample of circulars received to-day. Please send me some with my imprint, printed on one side only. The Kendall's Spavin Cure is in excellent demand in our county, and I have sold many bottles for horses, but for human ailments also. Mr. Jos. Voris, one of the leading farmers in our county, sprained his arm badly, and was unable to do any work. I applied the remedy for horses, tried it on himself, and it did him better than he had expected.
